Skills Oriented Groups/Workshops: these require a pre-group meeting
Couples Group
The goal of this couples communication group is to provide an opportunity to learn life-long skills, tools, and an understanding of what characteristics are involved in healthy intimate relationships. Learn how to peacefully resolve conflicts and create “win/win” solutions for both! Mondays, 7:00 to 9:00pm, Contact Janet.Elliot@oregonstate.edu

Managing ADHD: Strategies and Support
An educational/support group that assists students in managing difficulties with time planning, disorganization, procrastination and distractibility.
Mondays, 3:00 to 4:30pm, Contact Shazmin.Darwalla@oregonstate.edu

DBT (dual) Skills Training
If you struggle with managing your emotions, or often find yourself engaging in impulsive coping behaviors, the Dialectical Behavior Therapy Skills group is a place where you can learn new skills to healthily cope with difficult emotions. This group will introduce you to emotion regulation skills so that you have more options when faced with intense feelings.
Thursdays, 10:00 to 11:30am, Contact Autumn.Benton@oregonstate.edu or Aditi.Ahlawat@oregonstate.edu

Managing Anxiety
Learn different ways to manage your anxiety through mindfulness, acceptance, stepping back from unhelpful thoughts, understanding your values, and taking meaningful action.
Tuesdays, 1:00 to 4:00pm, Contact Stephanie.Shippen@oregonstate.edu

Mindful Living “Requires Orientation
Mindful Living is a skill-based, two hour, weekly group that meets for eight weeks, plus a six hour full day (Saturday). You will have the opportunity to engage in a direct experience and practice medically proven mind-body approaches derived from meditation and yoga to counteract stress, establish greater balance of body and mind, and stimulate well-being and healing. Please come join us in intentionally practicing being in the moment without judgment. Orientation is January 12th at 2:00 pm in Snell 301. Tuesdays, 2:00 pm to 4:00 pm at the Lonnie B. Harris Black Cultural Center.
Contact Jim.Gouveia@oregonstate.edu or Jennifer.Munch@oregonstate.edu

Support Groups: these require a pre-group meeting
OCD Support Group
This is a support group for students who are wanting to learn about Obsessive Compulsive Disorder (OCD). We will cover diagnosis of OCD, as well as symptoms and treatment options. We will discuss coping strategies to help alleviate symptoms, and have the opportunity to share your experience with fellow students in a safe and welcoming environment.
