Lush grass, park benches and colorful flowers make this the perfect space for an outdoor lunch break or study session on a sunny day. A large sculpture depicting ten life forms from a wide range of habitats and ecosystems acts as a focal point in this space.

Observe the hustle and bustle of campus from this mini sanctuary. The park bench and water fountain in the background offer visitors a chance for relaxation before heading into a busy day.

Donated by the class of 1959, this meditation labyrinth is ringed by bricks engraved with historic moments in OSU’s history. The brick pathway is intended to encourage quiet, contemplative walking.

Surrounded by tall shrubbery and spring blossoms, this space provide a cozy spot to take in the beauty around you.

Oregon State University is committed to advancing life long health and well-being for all. In order to achieve that status, health must be realized as a comprehensive concept including physical as well as mental health. These walks offer a mental escape from day-to-day life, allowing time to appreciate the history, beauty and culture of Beaver Nation.

The Quiet Spaces walk will allow you to discover places on campus to rest, meditate and unwind for a few minutes.

Echo Column
(Courtyard at Burt Hall)

Green Space at the Gladys Valley Gymnastics Center
(South Side along Jefferson)

Brick Labyrinth
(Between LaSells & Alumni Center)

Pocket Park
(On Campus Way, Behind Gilkey Hall)